Don't Be Touchy.

There are some people always looking out for slights. They cannot pay a visit, they cannot receive a friend, they cannot carry on the intercourse of the family, without suspecting some offense is designed. They are terribly touchy. If they meet an acquaintance in the street who happens to be preoccupied with business, they attribute his abstraction to some motive personal to themselves and take umbrage accordingly. They lay on others the fault of their irritability. A fit of indigestion makes them see impertinences in everybody they come in contact with. Innocent persons who never dreamed of giving offense are astonished to find some unfortunate word or some momentary taciturnity mistaken for insult. Of course, such a mental condition is due to too much thinking about self and to an exaggerated self esteem, even though unconscious. The best remedy is to persistently put thoughts of self out of mind. Find something more absorbing and more elevating to think about if you are one of the touchy ones, and you'll soon lose the habit.

A Storm Above the Clouds.

Professor John Wise, the eminent aeronaut, who lost his life in making a balloon ascension on Sept. 28, 1870, gave the following description of a thunderstorm which he once viewed from the "top side:" "The view of a stormcloud from above is one of the most interesting sights ever beheld by mortal man. A storm viewed from above the clouds has the appearance of ebullition. The upper surface of the cloud is bulged upward and outward and has the resemblance of a vast sea of boiling, upheaving snow. Immediately above the stormcloud the air is not so cold as it is in the clearer atmosphere above or in the cloud itself. The falling of the rain can be distinctly heard, making a noise like a waterfall over a precipice. The thunder heard above a stormcloud is not loud, and the flashes of lightning appear like streaks of intensely white light on the surface of the gray colored vapor."

A Life of Freedom.

People sometimes think how delightful it would be to be quite free. But a fish, as Ruskin says, is freer than a man, and, as for a fly, it is "a black incarnation of freedom." A life of so called pleasure and self indulgence is not a life of real happiness or true freedom. Far from it. If we once begin to give way to ourselves we fall under a most intolerable tyranny. Other temptations are in some respects like that of drink. At first, perhaps, it seems delightful, but there is bitterness at the bottom of the cup. Men drink to satisfy the desire created by previous indulgence. So it is in other things. Repetition soon becomes a craving, not a pleasure. Resistance grows more and more painful. Yielding, which at first, perhaps, afforded some slight and temporary gratification, soon ceases to give pleasure and, even if for a time it procures relief, ere long becomes odious itself.

Died Standing.

The incident of Ratisbon—a French officer, though mortally wounded, rides back to Napoleon, reports the capture of the city and then falls from his saddle dead—is paralleled by a story of Gettysburg. An officer of the Sixth Wisconsin regiment walked up to Colonel Dawes, who was in command—Colonel Bragg was in Washington on crutches. The officer was very erect and very pale. Dawes and Doubleday both thought he was coming with a report or to receive orders. But he was not. He had a favor to ask. "Colonel," he said to Dawes, "will you tell the folks at home I died as a man and a soldier should?" Then he unbuttoned his coat. His whole side was shot away. It was his last effort. He died standing.

A Nose Tax.

A "nose tax" was in the ninth century exacted by the Danes from the householders in Ireland. It was so called not because it was levied on noses, but from the fact that a failure to pay was punished by slitting the nose from tip to eyebrow. It was continued during thirteen years, when the householders, objecting to this treatment of their nasal ornaments, rose in rebellion, massacred all the Danes in Ireland and put an end to the nose slitting.

Pirating Foley's Honey and Tar

Foley & Co., Chicago, originated Honey and Tar as a throat and lung remedy, and on account of the great merit and popularity of Foley's Honey and Tar many imitations are offered for the genuine. These worthless imitations have similar sounding names. Beware of them. The genuine Foley's Honey and Tar is in a yellow package. Ask for it and refuse any substitute. It is the best remedy for coughs and colds.

Stimpson, of Willimantic, Conn., who, after almost losing hope of recovery, on account of the failure of so many remedies, finally tried Foley's Kidney Cure, which he says was "just the thing" for him, as four bottles cured him completely. He is now entirely well and free from all the suffering incident to acute Kidney trouble. Sold by The Avenue Drug Store.

The Great Nerve Tonic

Galien, Mich.

Gentlemen: I bought three bottles of your medicine from my druggist. The medicine rendered me very good service, but I am sorry to say that the druggists here are all sold out of your medicine. I should have bought six bottles instead of three. I will gladly take six bottles of the Nervine and Blood Tonic, and request that you write me, if you are able to read this, for I am rather old to write. I have suffered six years from NERVOUS TROUBLE, caused by a fall, and my whole body remained in a tremble, but no pain. Every doctor I consulted failed to help me, and I was compelled to give up all housework. Then I read your advertisement and bought your medicine, and almost immediately after commencing its use I was a new woman. I hope you will write me at once, and tell me how much money I must send, as I am anxious to get to using your medicine again soon. With most hearty regards, I remain,

"Love's Expedient"

(Original.)

From the time Marcia Ford was a little girl she was given to understand that she was to matry a rich man. The disadvantages of poverty and the advantages of wealth were drummed into her ears till it was supposed that she had learned her lesson well. She was a quiet, obedient girl, and as she was attractive her mother had great hopes of at least seeing her the wife of either a practical business man or the heir to an estate. Marcia knew that a union with a scholar, a plodding physician, clergyman or even a lawyer would be forbidden. As to one who followed the fine arts for a living, Mrs. Ford would put her daughter behind bars rather than permit her to marry one of them.

Several men either of means or heirs to means became suitors for the girl's hand, but she gave no assurance that she would choose between them. Then her mother received a shock. She discovered that her daughter was corresponding with some one who signed himself "Arthur," and this is all the clew she had to his identity. Confronting her daughter with the evidence of her disobedience, she demanded to know who Arthur was. Marcia declined to enlighten her. The mother stormed and pleaded and, finding her daughter obdurate, shut her up and hired a duenna to divide the watch.

Marcia made no effort to leave the house, and, though the two jailers watched with the greatest care, they did not discover that the prisoner was attempting to communicate with any one. Weeks, months, passed, while Marcia was the same obedient girl she had always been except that she would not reveal the identity of her lover. But so long as she refused her promise to give him up Mrs. Ford would not relax her watchfulness.

No men except such as brought supplies to the house were permitted to come upon the premises. Mrs. Ford offered to permit her daughter to see such visitors as she herself might approve of, but Marcia said that if she could not receive whom she pleased she did not care to see any one.

One spring, when the demon of house cleaning enters into all good housekeepers, Mrs. Ford determined to give her house a thorough overhauling. Papering was needed, but new paper would not match old paint, and the lady decided to have the painting done first. She meditated going to the country while the decorations were being made, but for two reasons decided to remain at home. In the first place, she wished to superintend the work herself, and, in the second, she dared not take her daughter where she could not as well watch her as at home.

Since it was at the height of the season for renovating dwelling houses, but one painter was set to work. Mrs. Ford seemed afraid of a man coming into her home, even a house painter, and followed him about under pretense of seeing that he did his work properly. He did not do it to suit her, but was very obliging, and when he had painted a room a color that clashed with another room opening into it agreed to do it all over again, taking the loss upon himself.

"Are you a journeyman?" asked Mrs. Ford.

"I have been a painter five years," replied the man meekly.

"Well," added the lady, much annoyed at the delay and the position she was placed in, "you will never make a living with the brush. You have no idea of the harmony of colors. Paint the room over, and I will divide the loss of time with you."

With marked good nature and patience the man painted the room over, but so slowly that by night he had not half finished it. Mrs. Ford telephoned to his employer to send the next day a man who knew his business, but the proprietor replied that he had not another man to spare. So the next morning the imbecile appeared and went to work again. When he had finished the room he had first spoiled the colors were a dream of harmony, and when Mrs. Ford went in to look at it she was surprised to see a decoration she had not bargained for. There was a little niche in the room from which a rosy cupid smiled at her.

"Did you do that?" she asked of the laborer.

"Yes, ma'am. I know how to paint signs."

"It's very pretty, but I don't want it there. Paint it out."

The man, apparently not the least sensible to the want of appreciation of his work, ran his brush over it and began to paint the next room.

When the painter was gathering up his brushes to leave the lady inspected his work and found it had been done so badly that she was quite beside herself. She stormed and threatened, and between her wrath and the painter's explanations in defense of his work she was kept some time. When the painter had departed she went to find her daughter.

The bird had flown.

Mrs. Ford was without knowledge as to where the fugitive had gone till the next morning, when she saw a notice in a paper that Arthur Parke, the rising young artist whose picture "Love's Expedient" had been recently sold for an enormous sum, had married Miss Marcia Ford, the daughter of Mrs. Peter Ford, of M—— square. How the lover managed to communicate with Marcia and the two set the trap for her she never knew. The girl had bribed a newsboy who left papers at the house to take several notes to her lover, in one of which she mentioned the proposed improvements, but when her lover appeared in the guise of a house painter she was greatly surprised.

"Several years since my lungs were so badly affected that I had many hemorrhages," writes A. M. Ake, of Wood, Ind. "I took treatment with several physicians without any benefit. I then started to take Foley's Honey and Tar, and my lungs are now as sound as a bullet. I recommend it in advanced stages of lung trouble." Foley's Honey and Tar stops the cough and heals the lungs, and prevents the serious results from a cold. Refuse substitutes.

A Lesson in Health

Healthy kidneys filter the impurities from the blood and unless they do this health is impossible. Foley's Kidney Cure makes sound kidneys and will positively cure all forms of kidney and bladder disease. It strengthens the whole system.

A man who is in perfect health, so he can do an honest day's work when necessary, has much for which he should be thankful. Mr. L. C Rodgers, of Brauchton, Pa., writes that he was not only unable to work, but he couldn't stoop over to tie his own shoes. Six bottles of Foley's Kidney cure made a new man of him. He says, "Success to Foley's Kidney Cure."

RENT PAYS FOR LAND.

Fertile Sections of the Southwest, Where Land Sells for $15 and Rents for $2 per Acre.

One of the remarkable things about Eastern Arkansas and Northern Louisiana is the fact that cleared land rents for $5 per acre cash, and can be bought for $7.50 to $15 per acre. It costs from $8 to $10 an acre to clear it. Other improvements necessary are slight and inexpensive.

The soil is rich alluvial, or made. It produces a bale of cotton per acre, worth $45 to $60. This accounts for its high rental value. Other crops, such as corn, small grains, grasses, vegetables and fruits, thrive as well.

Alfalfa yields 4 to 6 cuttings, a ton to a cutting, and brings $10 to $16 per ton.

In other sections of these states, and in Texas as well, the rolling or hill-land is especially adapted to stock raising and fruit growing. Land is very cheap, $5 to $10 per acre; improved farms $10, $15 to $25 per acre.

The new White River country offers many opportunities for settlers. High, rolling, fine water—it is naturally adapted to stock and fruit raising. Can be bought as low as $3 per acre.

See this great country for yourself and pick out a location. Descriptive literature, with maps, free on request.

TORTURING PAIN.

Half This Man's Sufferings Would Have Killed Many a Person, But Doan's Cured Him.

Thousands of grateful people are telling every day how Doan's Kidney Pills cured them of distressing and dangerous kidney and bladder troubles.

Yet other thousands are suffering every day from these same ills. Why? They are either very negligent or very skeptical. Neglect of kidney disorders leads to dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease and other fatal diseases.

Sincere, honest testimony like the following should convince every skeptic.

A. C. Sprague, stock dealer, of Normal, Ill., writes: "For two whole years I was doing nothing but buying medicines to cure my kidneys. I do not think that any man ever suffered as I did and lived. The pain in my back was so bad that I could not sleep at night. I could not ride a horse and sometimes was unable even to ride in a car. My condition was critical when I sent for Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and they cured me. Now I can go anywhere and do as much as anybody. I sleep well and feel no discomfort at all."

A. C. SPRAGUE.

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Sprague will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.
